Maury Regional adds new technology to Cancer Center

Maury Regional Cancer Center in Columbia has expanded its imaging technology to offer advanced PET, CT and PET/CT imaging services with the addition of the new Biograph mCT.

The Biograph mCT optimizes imaging that oncology physicians use to evaluate staging and monitoring of cellular activity over time and to assess treatment response. The new imaging system's innovative dose-reduction technologies minimize patient exposure to radiation, while its fast scan times result in less patient motion to improve image quality and overall patient experience. The Biograph mCT can support patients up to 500 lbs. and is designed to reduce claustrophobia with its wider 78-cm bore. The new imaging technology will be available full-time and can be scheduled with a physician's order.

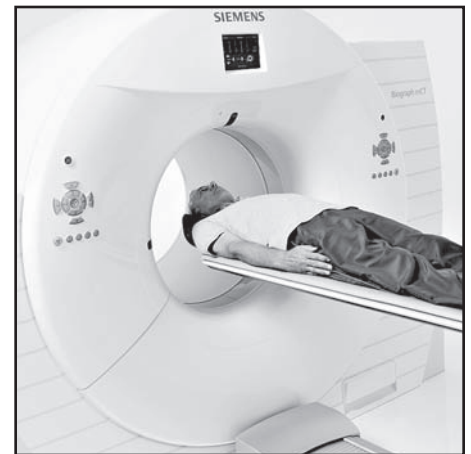

"Patients with cancer are often treated multiple days per week over a period of several weeks," said Maury Regional Health CEO Alan Watson. "Our goal is to provide advanced care and to enable patients to stay close to home rather than traveling to metropolitan areas. Expanding our PET services to five days a week and adding this imaging equipment complements our current cancer-fighting technology and our commitment to exceptional patient care."

Maury Regional Cancer Center is accredited by the Commission on Cancer of the American College of Surgeons and the American College of Radiology.

Physicians who treat cancer patients specialize in medical oncology, hematology and radiation oncology.

Marshall Medical Center introduces 3D mammography

Marshall Medical Center (MMC) recently added Genius™ 3D Mammography™ developed by Hologic, Inc., to its range of imaging services.

"We are pleased to continue enhancing the availability of advanced imaging technology at Marshall Medical Center," said MMC CEO Phyllis Brown. "This state-of-the-art imaging tool provides our technologists and radiologists with enhanced capabilities to identify breast cancer while reducing additional testing."

Genius™ 3D exams use advanced breast imaging technology and are clinically proven to increase the detection of breast cancers by using breast tomosynthesis to create a three-dimensional image of the breast structure, which enables radiologists to more clearly see through overlapping tissue to detect cancers, often at an earlier stage. A Genius exam requires no additional compression and takes just a few seconds longer than a conventional 2D breast cancer screening exam.

In recent years, 3D technology has become a standard of care for mammography exams. Most insurance plans will cover a 3D exam and it is affordably priced for patients not covered by insurance at $95.

Genius™ 3D Mammography™ is available at the Maury Regional Women's Center in Columbia, Marshall Medical Center in Lewisburg and Spring Hill Imaging Center in Spring Hill. Visit MauryRegional.com/Our-Services/Imaging-Centers for more information about imaging services provided throughout the Maury Regional Health system.

MRMC and WMC offer free COPD screenings and education

Maury Regional Medical Center (MRMC) and Wayne Medical Center (WMC) provided free education and screenings for chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) during two community events in June.

In Columbia, on June 22, pulmonologist Maura Lipp, M.D., presented a brief overview of COPD followed by members of the Respiratory Care team providing those in attendance with free screenings for oxygen saturation, spirometry and Alpha 1-Antitrypsin Deficiency, a genetic condition that can put individuals at greater risk for COPD.

"COPD often worsens over time but early detection can help to minimize lung damage by allowing patients to work with their physicians to identify medications and therapies that can help them breathe easier," Dr. Lipp said.

At Wayne Medical Center, on June 24, Respiratory Therapist Lisa Trimble and WMC Respiratory Care Director Carol Stooksberry discussed risk factors and symptoms of COPD.

Risk factors for COPD include current or previous tobacco use, exposure to air pollutants, respiratory infections, family history and long-term exposure to wood smoke, chemicals and second-hand smoke.

The Maury Regional Medical Center (MRMC) Auxiliary Board funded three renovation projects at the medical center this spring with several more renovation plans in sight for the future.

The special projects consisted of new furniture in the waiting rooms for Same Day Surgery, Endoscopy and three physician consultation offices. The MRMC Auxiliary Board funded the projects at a cost of more than $65,000.

"We are very grateful to the MRMC Auxiliary for making these renovations possible that continue to prioritize the comfort of our patients and their loved ones," said Scott Hayes, administrative director of surgical services.

Looking ahead, the Auxiliary Board has approved requests for new furniture in the waiting rooms for Cardiology/Cardiac Cath Lab at a cost of more than $19,000. The planned renovation will include three bariatric chairs, four recliners, five regular chairs and several tables.

Home services agencies are compared to the SHP national average for each quality measure as measured from patients' points of view.

"I commend all our Home Services staff members for their commitment to patient care," said Home Services Director Rosemary Edmonds. "Their exceptional work has resulted in this recognition."

PARKER’S PROJECT RAISES FUNDS FOR NICU PATIENTS

The Maury Regional Health Care Foundation partnered with Parker’s Project in June for the program’s third annual fundraiser to raise approximately $4,500 for newborns in the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU) at Maury Regional Medical Center (MRMC).

Local educators Cord and Sondra Martin established Parker’s Project in 2017 through the Foundation after their son Parker spent 31 days in MRMC’s NICU following his premature birth. Shortly after Parker came home, the Martins created the Parker’s Project program to provide books to NICU families to promote bonding and development.

“As educators, Cord and Sondra Martin know the power that reading to children has through voice recognition and stimulation,” said Foundation Executive Director Joe Kilgore. “We are grateful to them and honored to partner with them on this meaningful endeavor.”

The annual fundraiser, which sold out, took place at Puckett’s Grocery & Restaurant in downtown Columbia and featured music performed by the Jason Eskridge Band and Cord Martin.

Listerhill Credit Union served as the presenting sponsor for the event with additional sponsors including Beck Dental, B’s Tees, Bug Out, Clemmie Grace Designs, Duck River Books, the Jason Eskridge Band, Dr. Jeff and Tina Adams, McDonald’s of Maury County, Michelle Lamont Photography and Puckett’s of Columbia.

Gifts to support Parker’s Project may be made through the Foundation’s NICU Fund at MauryRegionalFoundation.com. Call 931.380.4075 for more information.
